To whom it may concern,

I have had the distinct pleasure of serving as instructor to Alexa Kanchuk in the Web Development for Business course at NSCC during the winter semester of 2019. Alexa stood out as student both academically and interpersonally in this class. Most notably she exudes positive energy, a sharp sense of humour and excels at making connections with people.

Alexa impressed me with her attention to detail and conscientious approach to her work. The websites she created were logically designed, visually appealing and well written. She attended every class, was always on time, and participated regularly in class discussions. Alexa demonstrated leadership and a willingness to assist her classmates whenever possible. She communicates incredibly well and works cohesively with others.

It was a pleasure watching Alexa quickly grow from a novice of WordPress web design software to a confident, intermediate level user. She has a unique combination of technical skills, adaptability and people skills.

In closing, I'd like to strongly recommend Alexa for any type of employment that values the combination of interpersonal and technical skills.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions about Alexa.

Sincerely,

Mark Cluney
